

Buddhism and Social Change

The DDVC “Buddhism and Social Change” workshop proposes to address areas of dialogue between Buddhist practice and the complex social and environmental crises and transitions we currently face. Speakers will address specific questions related to their research. Audience members will have opportunities to ask questions and participate in discussions on how Buddhism can affect our society and initiate or support social change. Please register online at www.ddmba.ca in advance.

Saturday, September 21, 2019, 9:00 am to 4:30 pm

Jonathan C. Gold, Associate Professor, Princeton University
Transforming Our Social Karma: Buddhist Concepts and the Role of Academia

Rebecca Li, Associate professor, The College of New Jersey, and Chan Teacher
Chan Practitioners as Agents of Social Change

David Loy, Professor, Writer and Zen Teacher
Ecodharma: A New Buddhist Path?

David McMahan, Professor, Franklin & Marshall College in Pennsylvania
Hand Mirrors and Infinity Mirror: Buddhism, Modern Subjectivities, and Social Change

Wendi Adamek, Associate Professor, University of Calgary
Re-Humanizing the Dynamics of Exchange

Dharma Drum Vancouver Center

Numata Chair in Buddhist Studies
Department of Classics and Religion, University of Calgary

